The territorial water of India extended into the sea to a distance of twelve nautical miles measured from the appropriate base line.